Most social workers begin their day early, often before the official office hours, to prepare mentally and logistically. The morning routine typically involves:

- Checking emails and messages: Addressing urgent client concerns, updates from colleagues, or administrative notices.
- Reviewing caseloads: Prioritizing appointments, noting any emergencies, and planning interventions.

Before engaging with clients, social workers often review case histories, recent notes, and any risk assessments. This preparation allows them to approach each interaction with sensitivity and informed insight, ensuring that they are responsive to individual needs and circumstances.

Engagement and Intervention: The Heart of Social Work

Conducting Client Meetings and Home Visits

A significant portion of a social worker's day is spent in face-to-face interactions, which can take various forms:

- Counseling sessions: Providing emotional support, guidance, and advocacy.
- Assessments: Evaluating client needs, safety concerns, and eligibility for services.
- Home visits: Observing living conditions, building rapport, and identifying environmental factors affecting well-being.
